

Problema
1. Focus on belief + intention but say ~~more~~ things about other mental states

2. 'Mindreading' &c refers to a capacity - something ppl can do vs
'mindreading' &c - refers to certain social practices

3. Link to infant, chimpanzees &c.

4. Relationship between folk psychology as a practice vs a capacity.

For cheap link: if a researcher says 'dimple attr belief', what is belief? Typically not questioned because belief is an English word - take it for granted that everyone has a common idea about what belief is.

5. Is the capacity formed by the practice? (e.g. Fink & Meyers).

ants perceive -- has believe...

Next time: Go back to the features. Go thru the list; ask, e.g. do anthropologists have this property?
(Put the ordering topic on hold)

Then: Which are the most basic ones?
How coherent is this set?

Social vs epistemic norms.

What the practice involves vs. what explains it.

From pos. of practitioners
vs from pos. of someone who explains the practice's success or usefulness → Communicative practices of attributing mental states.

What is the link between → communicative practices
→ scientific practices
→ natural abilities?
